. Super Secure.Q: Migrating from NodeJS0.10 to NodeJS0.12 I am newbie to NodeJS and also new to deploying application on production. I have developed a nodejs application and I have hosted application using node 0.10.. now I am planning to migrate application to node 0.12 as well as deploying application on Amazon EC2 I am unable to find good documentation of NodeJS and deploying application to EC2 Any suggestion or help would be of great help A: I also have done same thing, i want to migrate to NodeJS 0.12. But there is so much to do for migrating. You need to update all version. a. remove all node-* and npm packages before 0.12 b. Using the n module or bootstrap before 0.12, you need to use n or bootstrap with npm Q: Dynamics CRM 2011: Attach extension to item I have a custom Entity called RestrictedUser, and it is unique. It is created based on the user's role. The RestrictedUser entity has a field of type "@odata.type". I have added this as an item in a List, and I can get a list of the items. I want to attach an extension, when using the REST service, to the extension collection of this list. I know I can attach an extension to a specific record, by using the url... /entity/data/record/id. However, I want to attach it to all records in the List and not just one specific record. So the solution, I think, is to use the item id. I have tried creating a Form which has one field, and that has a GUID. I have tried using it for storing the list id, however, the guid is not properly created. It looks like a random hex number but if I use it for a lookup, it is not found. Does anyone have a solution for this? Thanks! Ivan A: There is a function to get the item ID of an entity. It returns a JSON string as a string. So, my problem was that I did not parse this string. Q: How do I save a model for new node with PHP variable? I am creating a Node generated by a PHP variable, and
